

Fall 2023 Residential Learning Communities

HEALTHY NEIGHBORS

Up to 33 residents

INTERESTED IN THE HEALTH SCIENCES FIELD?

Whether you are majoring in a health science field, such as nursing, nutrition, or human physiology, or you just have an interest in helping or serving others in a health-related way, the Healthy Neighbors Residential Learning Community (RLC) is for you! As a member of this RLC, you'll take a common first-year course together, explore health-related programs/topics, participate in health-related activities, and live together as neighbors on the same floor. In the Spring semester, you will have the option to sign up for an additional RLC course. Open to first-year students living on campus for Fall 2023.

BENEFITS OF RLCs

- Connect to UCCS and live on the same floor in housing
- Develop a strong sense of citizenship, community, and purpose
- Participate in co-curricular experiences in your area of interest and beyond
- Take GPS Pathways: Healthcare*
- Opportunity to take a Spring 2024 class with your fellow RLC students (course TBD during Fall 2023)

REQUIREMENTS: To participate in the Healthy Neighbors RLC, students must take the assigned GPS course that is focused on healthcare (and is offered in Fall 2023) AND live on the designated floor (location TBD) in on-campus housing. If you apply by March 1, the RLC will be your priority placement for housing. If you have a roommate preference, they must also be participating in this RLC. Room type preference will be based on availability.

Coursework may change based on availability. For more information on the specifics of the Gateway Program Seminar (GPS) courses, visit: <https://gps.uccs.edu/fall-courses>*
